Brief History of Sandpoint

Sandpoint has historically benefited from its key strategic geographic location as a link between water and land based transportation routes. Sand Point, as it was known, was a meeting ground and trading center for local Native American tribes when early explorers and trappers visited the region. In 1882, as the construction work on the railroad began, a small settlement called Pend

Oreille developed on the east side of Sand Creek. With the arrival in 1892 of the Great Northern Pacific Railroad, the community grew and this rustic, rough and tumble Sandpoint, as it was now known, grew to encompass the east and west sides of Sand Creek and at the same time developed a more genteel and family oriented nature. The Village of Sandpoint was incorporated on February 7, 1907.

The forests, farms and ranch lands, as well as rich mineral deposits in the Lake Pend Oreille region attracted settlers to small communities as they began to form throughout the area. Sandpoint continued to grow as a regional commercial center. Timber became the main industry in Sandpoint and Kootenai and the Humbird Lumber Company mill as well as others thrived in Sandpoint into the late 1920s.

The first two-mile bridge connecting Sandpoint with Sagle was completed in 1910. At the time it was the longest wooden wagon bridge in the world. The Panida Theater was built in 1927 to enhance entertainment options for area residents, making a total of 4 theaters in town. The 1940s brought Farragut Naval Station and 300,000 servicemen to the area. In 1963, Schweitzer Basin ski area opened. North Idaho's many unpopulated areas, natural beauty and diverse recreational opportunities began to attract a new wave of families from outside the region in the 1970s.

Between the 1980s and present day, the Sandpoint area transitioned from a resource-based economy of logging, mining, farming and ranching to a more diversified economy. That new economy includes arts and culture, manufacturing, recreation, technology, aeronautics, commercial services, education and small-scale horticulture while logging and mining have diminished.

This booklet provides a self-guided tour that highlights some of the key historical buildings dating from the early history of the City.

Sandpoint – a walk through history

The Sandpoint Historic Preservation Commission, in collaboration with Bonner County History Museum, invites you to enjoy this booklet of self-guided walking tours of Sandpoint's Historic sites and properties around town.

Downtown BLUE Tour – Numbers

This tour focuses on the downtown core business and retail area including the Sandpoint Historic District. It is comprised of buildings which are hallmarks of this historic, bustling and vibrant town.

Additional Sites GREEN – Roman Numerals

To further your Sandpoint experience, consider a visit to Lakeview Park to explore the lakeside, Kinnikinnick Native Plant Garden with a log cabin and the Arboretum. Also there for your enjoyment are a picnic and play area, the newly refurbished train caboose and the Bonner County History Museum. Here you can browse the wonderful and eclectic collections, which illustrate the richly diverse history of Sandpoint and Bonner County. Lakeview Park and the museum are located at 611 South Ella Street. Additional sites of historic significance which are outside of the walking tour areas, and well worth the visit, are also included.

South Sandpoint RED Tour – Letters

This tour focuses on the south side of Sandpoint and encompasses a more extensive scenic tour, featuring private residences and beautiful lake views. Follow the booklet descriptions for architectural and historical significance in this area of Sandpoint.

Downtown Blue Tour

1. 300-302 N. First Ave. Panida Theater  OO

A Spanish Mission style structure, built for $70,000 in 1927 by F.C. Weskil, first opened its doors as a vaudeville and cinema venue. The entrance fee was a bottle cap, and by the 1940s had increased to 9 cents. Dedicated to the people of the PANhandle of IDAho, the theater was given the name PANIDA. It was the first building in Sandpoint built of reinforced concrete. The theater had a unique "Cry Room" where mothers with babies could sit in comfort behind a glass window to view performances and films with audio piped into the room. In 1985 the Panida was slated to be destroyed. Three local women, the "Panida Moms," raised the money to save it. The theater received the Orchid Award from Preservation Idaho in 1986.

2. 301 N. First Ave. Northern Mercantile **

Built in 1905 by J.K. Dow for $17,000, this two story brick building is slightly off square, following the diagonal line of Main Street. Unusual for the time, it had its own private sewer system and electricity. The second floor was dedicated to office space and the ground floor was used as a dry goods store. The building once housed the post office, Sandpoint's first radio station, a hardware store and a drug store.

3. 206 N. Second Ave. Brothel

First appearing on the town's local maps in 1915, the residence was one of the first brick houses to be built in Sandpoint. During a renovation in 1992, aspects of life in this "home" were revealed; it appears to have been used as one of the town's brothels during the boom logging years. The original second story wooden floor was deeply imprinted with "spikes" from loggers calk boots in a track from the "apartments" to the common wash room. Other homes built in this area have been demolished making this house unique as the last remaining "home" from an original residential area.

4. 110 Main St. Sandpoint City Hall **

Built on property donated by L.D. Farmin, the building was originally graced with a roof cupola housing a bell and later a siren. Up until the 1970s, the curfew siren blew each evening at 10 pm to ensure teenagers were off the streets. The fire station occupied the space where the vehicle bay doors can still be seen. The building also once served as the city library.

5. 200 Main St. Knights of Pythias **

The wooden building behind the streetcar in the photograph is the original Knights of Pythias Lodge. This building was moved to the adjacent property to the north and in 1909 the current building, constructed of precast cement block formed at the local Hunt Factory, replaced it. For years, fire-doors connected the two buildings. The ground floor was occupied by Graves Furniture Company and the second floor housed the K.P. Lodge.

6. 314 N. Second Ave. Elks Lodge

The Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks (B.P.O.E.) building was constructed in 1936 following an original 1920 Art Deco design. The creative design had a small courtyard in the front of the building. B.P.O.E. is on the marker stone above the door. The 4th of July parades they sponsored were highlights of life in Sandpoint.

7. 201-203 Cedar St.
Thomason Brothers Hardware and Furniture

Constructed in 1904 for $30,000, it was the largest building in Sandpoint, built with unique architectural features typical of buildings of this era. At one point in its history, it was converted to house Idaho First National Bank. The Masonic Lodge has been the upstairs occupant for much of its history.

8. 419 N. Second Ave. Sandpoint Federal Building **

Built in 1928 to house the U.S. Post Office, U.S. Forest Service, IRS, Civil Service and military recruitment offices. In 1973, it was listed on the NRHP for its architectural significance and detailing representing the Spanish Revival style. In the 1980s the city library moved to this location. When the new library was built in 2000, Sandpoint residents transferred thousands of books by forming a one mile book brigade to the new library location on Division Street.

9. 506 N. Second Ave. Page House

Arriving in Sandpoint in 1900 from Pullman, WA, Dr. Ones F. Page, the company doctor for the Humbird Lumber Company, designed and built the current house in 1917. Constructed of local old growth larch with 'state of the art design', Dr. Page had his patient surgery in the room to the left of the front door. The home was frequently used to house overflow patients from the adjacent Page Hospital. With the family cow and chickens that were "kept out back," his family supplied fresh milk, cream and eggs to the hospital.

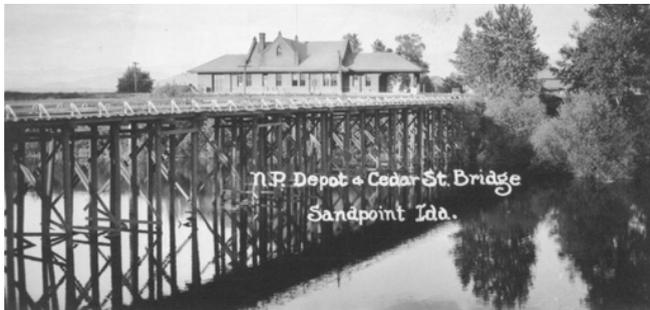

10. 514 N. Second Ave. Page Hospital

Dr. Ones F. Page built the Page Hospital, in 1907 in the current location of Bonner General Health. The three-floor building with a full basement housed 27 patients and had steam heat throughout with sewage connection through a private line to the creek. Dr. Page offered annual insurance at $12 per patient that covered "hospitalization, surgery, medicine and medical treatment with no additional costs." Refurbished and renamed City Hospital in 1908 and without an elevator, patients were transported up the steep stairs on gurneys. The hospital was torn down in 1951 to make way for the new infirmary, purchased from Farragut Naval Station, which was shipped up the lake in sections on three barges.

11. 109 Cedar St. Farmin Building **

Built circa 1909 by L.D. and Earl Farmin, of precast cement block and with decorative scrolled brackets below the roof, excavation of the building's foundation was halted as quicksand was uncovered. Pilings were driven through the quicksand to bedrock to secure the building. Originally built as their offices it later housed a bank, telephone exchange, drug store, millinery shop and ladies' clothing store.

12. 334 N. First Ave. Cedar Street Bridge

As early as 1893, there was a low footbridge spanning Sand Creek that connected the old part of the town of Sand Point on the east side of Sand Creek to the new town on the west side of the creek. It was often washed out and needed constant repair. In 1906, L.D. Farmin built a wider "2 wagon width" bridge; thereby creating a safer bridge with better access to the train depot. The bridge was rebuilt in 1933 and again in the early 1980s when the current bridge opened as a public market. In the early years, Sand Creek was the summer camping and fishing area of the Kalispel tribe of Native Americans.

13. 329 N. First Ave. Northern Idaho News  (right of photo)

One of the oldest, 1915 frame-built structures in the Historic District, it originally had a brick veneer façade that is now covered with stucco. The foundation had similar problems to the Farmin Building and also sits on pilings. Home to the Northern Idaho News, it housed a gasoline powered printing press. The second floor was occupied by Dr. Page, the local dentist whose office equipment is preserved at the local museum.

14. 327 N. First Ave. Traders Bank **

Built in 1906, this two story building was purpose built as a bank and dry goods store. Ole and Hannah Jennestad opened 'Jennestad's Good Clothing' store in 1900 at 317 First Avenue opposite the Panida Theater. Many of Ole's customers were loggers who couldn't always get to town, so Ole traveled to the logging camps with his horse drawn wagon full of heavy wool working pants, flannel shirts and woolen socks to sell. In 1908, Ole partnered with his employee Chris Larson to open the Jennestad and Larson Clothiers located in this building. By 1940 the partnership had dissolved and Larson's Men's and Boys' store occupied the site. Jennestad's also remained in business in a new location and Ole was tasked with the responsibility of outfitting 750 prisoners of war located at Farragut Naval Station with boots and socks.

15. 321-323 N. First Ave.
Travis and Hunt Buildings ****

These two buildings, built in 1906 costing $8,000 each, were identical in appearance until 1909 when the Hunt Building (323) was remodeled adding two more windows to the upper story and using cement block to contrast with the brick. D.E. Brown's Jewelry Store shared the ground floor space with Nieman's Royal Sweet Shop that by 1930 became the Peter Pan Confectionery operated by Mrs. Patterson. The Travis Building's (321) ground floor housed the Star Meat Market which supplied fresh meat to logging and remote mining camps, while the second floor had a lodge hall that was later converted to a hotel and apartments.

16. 319 N. First Ave. Bigelow Building **

Built in 1909 by P.E. Bigelow who financed the construction of the building bearing his name, the ground floor housed the Cranston Brothers Hardware store till the early 1930s.

17. 307-311 N. First Ave. Bernd Building **

William August Bernd, born in Bernburg, Germany, arrived in Sandpoint in 1903. W.A. Bernd, 23 and unmarried, opened a dry goods store before commissioning the substantial two-story brick Bernd building in 1907. The second floor was a fourteen-bed hotel, while the ground floor housed a dry goods store and grocery store. Circa 1913, Bernd married Sarah L. Hughes and they lived in the hotel. The building has a unique upper façade, decorated by eight evenly spaced round arched windows and accented by a raised band of repetitive arches. The building was placed on the NRHP in 1983.

18. 305 N. First Ave.

Part of the Historic District, this 1905 building was designed by J.K. Dow for owner C. R. Ross. The upper story contains two pair of arched windows joined by a continuous concrete sill that terminates in an elaborate scroll at each end. A raised brick band accents the window arches and a cornice band of corbeled brick pendants tops the façade. The roofline, the only one in the district which is not horizontal, comes to a flattened peak.

19. 223 N. First Ave. Commercial Building

This building, dating back to 1915, was originally the Saratoga Bar during the rough and wild era of Sandpoint. It later housed a cigar shop, jewelry store, a barber shop, a grocery store, a doctor's office, a café and a music store.

21. 207 N. First Ave. Pastime Sports Shop and Pastime Café

This building complex has held many businesses over the years, including a notorious gambling hall, but was primarily known as the Pastime Sports Shop and the Pastime Café. The Pastime Café opened in 1941 and was a favorite meeting place for locals, being well-known for its horseshoe counter and strong black (camp) coffee.

20. 219 N. First Ave. 219 Lounge

A long-time tavern in Sandpoint, it was formerly known as The Diamond, and a diamond design can be seen on the front façade. A recent renovation uncovered murals that were painted by locally famed artist Gene Hayes. Hayes, a WWII veteran, lost his lower right arm and hand in a feed mill accident and transferred his painting skills to his left hand. He was Sandpoint's premier business sign painter and artist for many years.

22. 202 N. First Ave. (right of photo)

Built as one of the many saloons in Sandpoint and operated by Bill Abbott until 1910 when Idaho went "dry," the building has had various occupants. Used as a bakery for many years, it later became Sandpoint Saddlery, where cowboy boots were made and repaired.

23. 101 N. First Ave. Bonner Meat Company

Built in 1908 as the Bonner Meat Company, this was a central location for local farmers to supply bountiful amounts of livestock. Providing meat both locally and regionally, the company prided itself on being an upscale meat market. The two-story brick building cost $75,000 and was equipped with an elevator, modern refrigeration, huge marble counters and tiled floors and walls.

24. 105 N. First Ave. Fidelity Trust Building

Built in 1906 and one of the first brick buildings in this section of the town it originally housed the C.J. Shoemaker Real Estate and Abstract (Title) Office. The second floor offices were occupied by Attorney Allen Asher and the Tigglebeck Engineering Company. This is the home of a resident ghost that walks the upper floors and often passes the kitchen window. Could it be Asher or Tigglebeck?

Additional Sites (indicated on map in Green)

I. 450 Railroad Ave. Train Depot  OO

The 1916 Northern Pacific Railroad Train Depot was built in Gothic style of local brick replacing the original 1882 wooden structure. It is the last surviving building of the original town of Sand Point and is the only active Amtrak passenger station in Idaho. The depot is the recipient of the prestigious 2015 Orchid Award from Preservation Idaho for restoration and renovation.

II. 602 N. Fourth Ave. Nesbitt/Tanner House  OO

Built in 1906 by Dan Tanner, it was occupied by widow Amanda Nesbitt who purchased the home and ran it as a boarding house to support herself and her two sons. Amanda was quite significant in the life of Sandpoint as a card-carrying member of the Women's Christian Temperance Union and was well-known for her parrot that sang the Star Spangled Banner. The house is significant as the only Queen Anne style home with a tower left in Sandpoint. Renovated in 2012, the building was awarded the prestigious Orchid Award from Preservation Idaho 2015.

III. 502 N. Fourth Ave. Boarding House

Originally built circa 1906, as a boarding house for Charles Melquist, the house later became known as Dr. Wagner's naturopathic practice. Extensively restored in 2002, the building's renovation revealed in a wall, the lost wallet of lovelorn Billy Hines that concealed a steamy love letter written to the lovely and beautiful Marleyn. Perhaps Billy had cold feet and did not give her the letter, or perhaps she rebuffed Billy's declaration of undying love and returned the letter. The mystery remains as to why he still had the letter in his wallet.

IV. 417 N. Fourth Ave. Presbyterian Church

In 1904 Reverend Samuel Harris was the first Presbyterian pastor sent by the Spokane Presbytery to Sandpoint to support the small and active Presbyterian congregation and to build a church building. Reported to have cost $4,500, Rev. Harris spearheaded most of the planning and participated in much of the work and it was Rev. Harris who insisted on having the beautiful stained glass windows installed rather than the more commonly used cheaper milk glass windows.

V. 301 Cedar St. Williams Block

Constructed circa 1904, this building originally housed a dry goods store, drug and grocery store. By 1915 the upstairs had been converted to the St. James Hotel and Apartments, and the ground floor was home to a restaurant and confectionery. The building housed J.C. Penney from 1916 to 1923. It became a furniture store in 1950 and remained so until renovations took place in 2014.

VI. 401 Church St. Olson House **

In 1915 Charles and Mary Olson commissioned their Arts and Crafts bungalow to be designed and built by architect H.L. Mountjoy. In 1935 the Olson's sold the home to Mr. Vic Barber. Over the years, numerous families owned it. In 1999, Barber's grandson purchased the home and began an extensive restoration based on old photographs, returning the home to its original style and grandeur. The home was placed on the NRHP in 2001.

VII. 615 Oak St. St. Joseph's Catholic Church OO

Built in 1907, St. Joseph's Catholic Church was home to a burgeoning congregation and was in use until 2008. In 2014 the church was sold and remodeled to its current configuration. Awarded the prestigious Orchid Award in 2015 from Preservation Idaho, the building is currently used as an events center called the Heartwood Center.

VIII. 602 S. Ella St. Moran House

This home was purchased from Sears & Roebuck in 1907 as a "Kit House" by P.H. Moran, the first Chief of Police of Sandpoint. The building materials were shipped by rail to Sandpoint. The original kit cost about $2,500, however the family incurred the additional costs of the cement block veneer installed by local craftsmen. The Moran family owned the land two blocks east and south of the home, which was planted with fruit trees. This "Kit House" was one of Sears and Roebuck's earlier models prior to the publication of the catalog in 1908.

IX. 611 S. Ella St. Bonner County Museum

Built in 1976 on what was the old Bonner County Fairgrounds, the building was dedicated in 1980. Former Idaho Governor Don Samuelson, a local resident and historian, spearheaded the construction of the building. The museum has many wonderful exhibits of the history of this area and is well worth a visit.

X. S. Division St. Lakeview Cemetery ++

The first cemetery, known as the Humbird Cemetery and later as Sandpoint Cemetery, was located on the west side of Sand Creek on a strip of donated forest land. In 1893 the J.D. Nesbitt family owned a small shingle mill and a boarding house that adjoined the cemetery. The Humbird Lumber Mill, the largest mill in the area, was expanding and in search of more land. They purchased the Nesbitt shingle mill, the boarding house and in addition acquired the cemetery land. A five-acre parcel of land was purchased by Humbird Lumber Mill on the west of town in which to re-locate and inter the bodies from the old cemetery. The Lakeview Cemetery was incorporated in 1903. Today, these five acres are known as the old part of Lakeview Cemetery; an additional four acres were purchased in 1929 completing the cemetery as seen today. A perpetual care cemetery that is still in use today, the cemetery currently numbers 2,200+ known graves and has a unique section known as "Little Lambs" dedicated to the children who died during the 1918-19 Spanish Flu epidemic, a GAR 1920 Civil War grave section, and is also home to many of the founding families of Sandpoint. The oldest burial on record is that of "BARTON, Father" who died in 1881 and was interred from the original Humbird Cemetery.

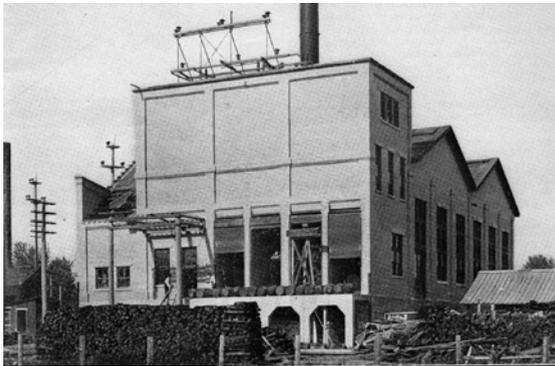

South Sandpoint Red Tour

B. 110 S. First Ave. Moose Lodge

Built in 1905, the original location was at the old town site on the east side of Sand Creek. It was moved across the creek to "Mill Town" and was a residence for many years. It also served as an induction center during WWII. The house was then moved to its current location and purchased by the Fraternal Order of the Moose until it was converted to a business.

C. 120 E. Lake St. Power House OO

The Northern Idaho and Montana Power Company power house was completed in 1910 for $200,000. This large building is constructed of brick, concrete and steel with 13 inch walls between the engine and boiler room. The 500 kilowatt, 670 horsepower Allis-Chalmers engine was fueled by wood and sawdust fed to the furnace by a conveyor belt from a nearby shingle mill. The Power House furnished power to Sandpoint and surrounding areas for many years. The building was awarded the Orchid Award from Preservation Idaho in 1990.

D. 215 S. First Ave. Courthouse

The County of Bonner was created in 1907 necessitating a courthouse. Commissioned by Ignatz and Irene Weil on property they owned, the building was rented to the County. In 1908 the County decided to purchase both the building and property. Extensively renovated in the 1970s the only remaining visible detail from the original design is the white brick trim.

E. 202 S. First Ave. Johnson House

Built in the early 1900s by attorney Peter Johnson and his wife Bertha, the front of the building was used as his law office and the rear of the building was their residence. After Peter died, Bertha would sit in the front office window with binoculars targeted towards the Bonner County Court House across the street, watching courthouse proceedings through the large front courthouse windows.

F. 200 S. First Ave. Community Hall **

Construction began in 1935, originally to house the Boy Scouts and youth activities during the winter months. This log building was built of native peeled 13" tamarack logs, milled and donated by the Humbird Lumber Company. Due to lack of county funds and labor the Works Progress Administration (WPA) continued and completed the construction in 1936. In 1942 the Y.M.C.A. leased the Hall from the city for $1 a year for use as a U.S.O. club and later added the south wing. Regularly scheduled buses brought military personnel from Farragut Naval Station (300,000 sailors) from 1942 to 1946 during WWII.

G. 227 S. First Ave. Ignatz Weil/McFarland House ## OO

The first person of record to reside where the McFarland house sits today was an 'old timer' by the name of Jack Waters. In 1892, an article ran in the Pend d'Oreille News of Sand Point regarding the death of Jack Waters who was accidentally shot in the arm while passing the Sandpoint Slaughterhouse. Frank Hull, who was employed by the slaughter house was killing a beef when the bullet ricocheted and hit Waters in the arm. Drs. Dutton and Harvey were called to attend Waters with both doctors recommending the arm be amputated. Waters was transported by train to Spokane where the arm was amputated but Waters later died. Mr. Waters, an elderly (50) unmarried man, had left no will or heirs. He owned 160 acres of land including a homestead in the area called Whistle town. Local lawyer Ignatz Weil settled Waters' affairs and took possession of the 160 acres and homestead as payment for "services rendered." Later Weil built "Sandpoint's finest house in town" where the family lived for many years. Poor investments resulted in the sale of the house to L.D. McFarland, lumber mill owner. A garage was added to the home in the late 1970s; however, the house remains almost as built, including the wrought iron rail fence and gate surrounding the property. The house was awarded the Orchid Award from Preservation Idaho in 1990.

I. 509 S. First Ave. Tudor Revival

This Tudor revival home was a common architectural style in the 1920s and '30s. A front entry porch spans the width of the façade which is sheltered by the overhang of the roof. The stucco exterior, leaded glass windows and timber elements are indicative of the Tudor style.

H. 421 S. First Ave. Catlin House

Frank Eugene Catlin, a banker who served in the Civil War and younger brother of renowned artist George Catlin, built the home in 1905. During the 1930s, the home became the Graham Hospital and during the 1940s was used as a boarding house for the wives of men stationed at Farragut Naval Station. During the 1930s the grand porch was totally enclosed. However, with the recent renovation the porch has been re-opened to display its original design. Members of the Catlin Family have resided in Sandpoint throughout the years. A book written by Marjorie Catlin Roehm, granddaughter of F.E. Catlin, titled The Letters of George Catlin and his family - A Chronicle of the American West illustrates many aspects of life in the newly burgeoning small towns of the Wild West.

J. 412 S. Second Ave. Selle House

In 1908, Charles Selle, owner of many acres of timber and supplier to the Humbird Lumber Company, built the home as a Christmas present for his wife. However, the home was barely lived in. Mrs. Selle missed being out in the country and living in their log cabin in the Matchwood area (later the Selle Valley). The family moved back to the farm and used the town house for parties. The original carriage house is still standing in the back, although it leans precariously.

K. 421 Michigan Spanish Style Bungalow ##

Built in 1920, the home features an arched tiled entryway with a recessed door. The stucco walls are in varied contrast to the many wood siding homes in town.

M. 511 Huron Dell Brown House ##

A Dutch Colonial, this home is known as the Dell Brown house and was built between 1915 to 1921 when Erie Street was closed and replaced with residential lots. The bay windows and hip roof extension are both original features. This style's characteristics include the gambrel roof and gable end chimney.

L. 428 Huron Popular Design ##

Built circa 1900, diamond paned windows and a bay window highlight this home. An integral recessed porch invites you to enter the home. It has had some additions over the years, but is a very good example of a home with original characteristics for this time period in Sandpoint.

N. 514 Euclid St. Popular Design ##

This dwelling is a fine example of early twentieth century homes in Sandpoint featuring leaded windows and a triangular upper window.

O. 504 Euclid St. Queen Anne ##

A turn of the century dwelling stands proudly at this location. The high style of the Queen Anne roofline, along with decorative windows and wrap around porch, are highlights of this grand historic home.

P. 502 Euclid St. Foursquare Design ##

This classic Foursquare Design has its original motif. With original fir and tamarack flooring, crown molding, doors and hardware, and leaded windows, it has been restored without losing the integrity of this classic home. This home was the first to be built in 1908 in the newly platted South Sandpoint.

Q. 436 Euclid St.
S.M. Moore House ##

This Dutch Colonial Revival was built in 1908 for Samuel and Mary Moore. In 1911 Samuel and his son Don C.D. Moore purchased the Northern Idaho News where Don was manager for many years. The Moore family were very civic minded and served the community of Sandpoint in various ways, from electoral positions including Samuel as City Clerk and Don as Sandpoint Mayor; to daughter Alice Stidwell's son Charles, who became the school principal for whom Stidwell Elementary is named.

R. 428 Euclid St. Craftsman Style Bungalow ##

This home was built in 1912, and is a fine example of an intact Craftsman style bungalow, including heavy knee braces, visible rafter tails, and flared porch columns.

S.102 Euclid Ave. Sandpoint High School  OO

Built in 1923 the first graduating class consisted of 36 students while the last graduating class in 1953 was 118 students. Used in turn as a high school, junior high and ninth grade center, the school was condemned and closed in 1986. The building was unique in having a 2nd floor open mezzanine running track and still has the 3rd floor auditorium and performing stage. It was the 2014 recipient of the prestigious Orchid Award from Preservation Idaho for restoration and renovation. The locally known "Ninth Grade Center" or "Old High School" is currently being used as private offices.

T. 101 Euclid Ave. First Baptist Church

Incorporated in 1905, the First Baptist Church congregation met in various local halls in town until their new church building was dedicated on August 14, 1910. The original architect was the first pastor, the Rev. R.W. King, with help from his congregation. Wood from another structure on the lot was used to construct the church. Since the early 1980s the building has housed Sandpoint Head Start.

U. 102 S. Second Ave. Lenox Pool Hall and Hotel

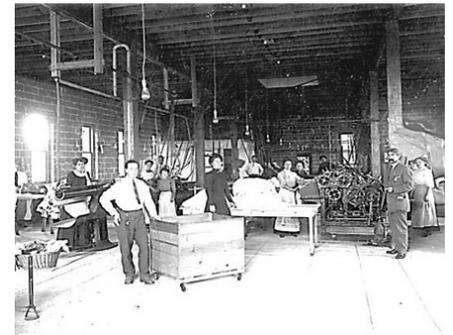

The two-story brick building was built in 1909 as a hotel and pool hall. In 1920, the pool hall became the Economy Grocery offering fresh butchered meats, farm produce and merchandise and lasted until the mid-1970s. Local wildlife artist Ward Tollbom's part time job was to help his father Stewart Tollbom, the butcher, wrap customers' meat purchases whereupon Ward would embellish the plain brown paper with hand-drawn ducks, birds or plants. Now named the Hotel Elliott, upstairs rooms are still available for rent.

V. 125 S. Second Ave.

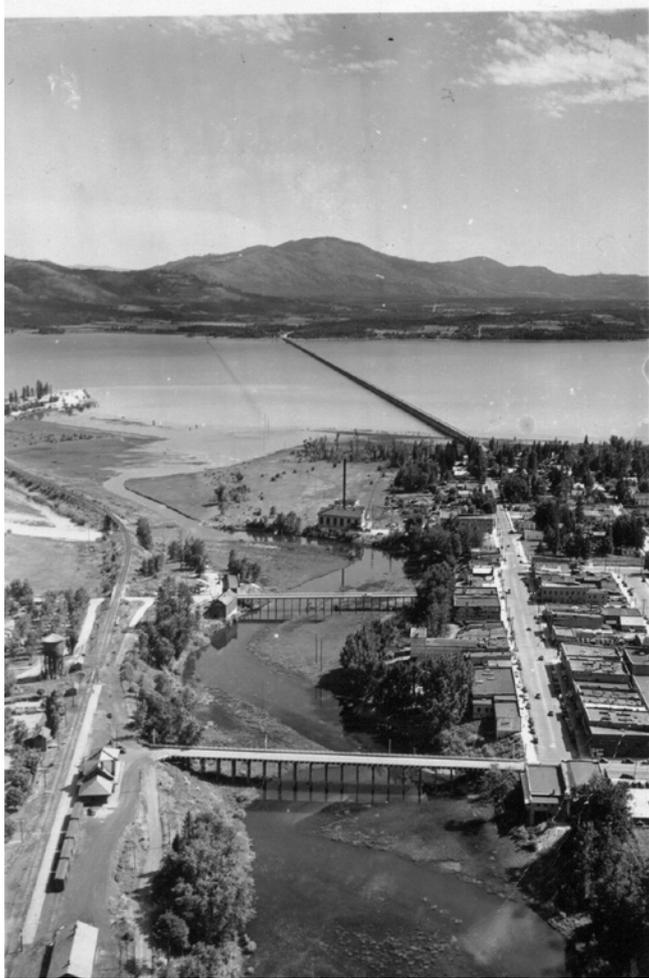

Lakeside Laundry/Pend Oreille Cheese Factory

Built in 1908, the Lakeside Laundry was operated by W.J. Davis and his wife Martha. This commercial laundry catered to hotels and boarding houses and the Pullman trains arriving in Sandpoint. Built of concrete block to simulate stone, it was gutted by fire in 1949. The Pend Oreille Cheese Factory, a family business founded by Bill Beyer in 1961, relocated into the building in 1965, completely remodeling and considerably enlarging it. A July 8, 1965 article in the Sandpoint News-Bulletin lauded the cheese factory as "a dream of dairymen, chamber of commerce committees and county agents for many years." Some of the neighbors weren't as pleased and complained to the City Council about "blocking of the alley by large milk trucks, diesel trucks running at all hours, employee language and blaring radios." (Daily Bee, September 15, 1966). Beyer promised to put an end to the radios and loud talking, while the city established a loading zone on Lake Street north of the factory, so the alley would not have to be used.
